Outspoken defenders of The Whittington's A&E vow to fight...

'FOR AS LONG AS IT TAKES'

By Lucy Purdy

THE battle lines have been drawn by determined campaigners who have vowed to unite to fight sweeping cuts to health services in Haringey.

Concerned residents, patients' groups, trade union representatives, cross-party politicians and even hospital staff crammed into a small room of the Whittington Community Centre in Archway on Monday and thrashed out details of their plan of attack against proposals to scrap the Whittington Hospital's A&E department.

After two hours of passionate discussion, the Defend The Whittington Coalition was formed and a mass demonstration planned for February 27 to show health chiefs in charge of shaking up north London's health services just how fiercely people feel about protecting the Highgate Hill hospital.

Representatives from all five boroughs covered by the North Central London division of the NHS have pledged to fight proposals, penned by chief executive Rachel Tyndall and leaked to the media, setting out four options for a cost-cutting reshuffle of hospitals and services. The Whittington was downgraded to a "local hospital" in each, meaning it would have no emergency department or specialist services – a particularly alarming prospect for people in Haringey which already has no major hospitals within its borders. Under one of the proposals, North Middlesex University Hospital in Edmonton – the next nearest A&E for many – could also be downgraded to a local hospital without a 24-hour A&E.

> 'We mustn't give up.'

A rallying cry was issued at the meeting by Keith Flett, chairman of Haringey Trade Unions Council, who warned the battle would be protracted and exhausting – yet vital.

"We need to keep going for as long as it possibly takes," he said. "Unless we stand up now, they'll run consultations and exercises and pay no attention whatsoever to anything we say.

"Trusts have a way of operating that is best summed up as relentless – their aim is to wear us down. But we must keep that A&E open no matter what we do. We have certainly got to be here in six months and we have got to be here in a year. We mustn't give up."

Candy Udwin, chairwoman of Camden Keep Our NHS Local campaign group, also urged all residents in Haringey, Barnet, Enfield, Islington and Camden to get involved, warning the removal of a hospital's A&E department often sounds a "death knell" for other services. She said: "This is happening across London and there are billions in cuts on the horizon. Not only do they want to save money, they plan to split our NHS into bite-sized chunks for privatisation. This is the tip of the iceberg. We need a demo to say we're not going to let them shut this department and run this hospital down."

Though health chiefs have pledged not to make changes without consultation, this has not dampened fears patients' lives may be at risk. Since details of the covert proposals

Report points a finger at 'poor' council STILL letting children down

Council is criticised for failing to improve on its services

By Lucy Purdy

HARINGEY COUNCIL has been slammed for "unforgivable" failings in child protection as the authority is rated "poor" in a recent report – more than two years since the Baby Peter scandal.

Inspectors found children and young people in the borough are "not yet consistently safeguarded", and ranked Haringey worst in London, as part of their annual round-up of the council's performance in the Audit Commission's annual Comprehensive Area Assessment, released last week. They said improvements in the much-criticised department are hampered by problems recruiting permanent staff. When the inspection was carried out, a third of health visitor posts were empty and a third of social care staff were being employed temporarily from agencies.

Though inspectors acknowledged the council had improved in street-cleaning, removing litter and in helping reduce crime, Haringey was still rated poor overall – largely because of its "inadequate" safeguarding children score.

Councillor Robert Gorrie, leader of Haringey Liberal Democrats, said: "It is unforgivable that Haringey Council is still failing the most vulnerable people in our borough; from children at risk to those in desperate housing need. The staff seem to be trying their best but Labour are failing to provide the leadership so sorely needed. Labour have clearly become part of the problem and not the solution.

"Residents need a fresh start that can only come with a party that hasn't been in charge for the last 40 years."

Seventeen-month-old Peter Connelly died in August 2007, despite being known to Haringey's child protection department, after enduring a catalogue of injuries including a broken back and fractured ribs. Since then the department has undergone a complete overhaul.

Responding to the findings, council leader Claire Kober insisted the "fundamental problems" in Haringey's child protection services are being addressed. She said: "It's encouraging to see that in many important areas and services the council is performing well, and this has been recognised in this independent report. But we're aware we have some way to go in improving child protection.

"Major changes have already been made and officers and councillors are committed to doing all we can to make Haringey's child protection the best there is. We know this is a serious challenge but that is no reason not to aim for the highest possible standard."

Teenage pregnancies, homelessness and a health divide between the east and west of the borough were also flagged up as problems. But there were encouraging signs in other fields; inspectors found services provided by the council for older and vulnerable people are performing well and leisure and cultural opportunities for local people are improving. The council was also praised for its financial management and use of resources, having saved around £23million through efficiency drives in the past three years.

And feedback from residents showed many are happy with Haringey's sense of community spirit and with services such as doorstep recycling, parks, libraries and employment support.

'A&Es groan at the seams'

emerged four weeks ago, signatures have poured in to online petitions and it is hoped efforts to save Whittington's A&E will be consolidated into one unified campaign.

Pete McAskie, Parliamentary Candidate for Hornsey and Wood Green, said: "We've been affected by the cutting back of services at Chase Farm Hospital in Enfield, putting extra pressure on Barnet General and North Mid. This is very much a regional issue. The A&Es are groaning at the seams."

Mick Gilgunn, Islington Trades Union Council, added: "Is this about prime real estate in Highgate? Hopefully this is only a scenario I'm dreaming up but it's one we know too well."

Health boss Ms Tyndall faced the public and MPs at another meeting last week, trying to reassure them that no changes will be made unless hospital and ambulance services can accommodate the plans. She told those present: "Our main focus is on improving services across this area, not closing hospitals or services – it is about enabling them to better focus on the things they do best."

The next meeting of the next DTWC will take place at 7pm on Thursday January 7 at the Whittington Community Centre in Yerbury Road and is open to all.

Victory for the critics of 'unsightly bunker' depot after rare Government intervention

Plans to build rail super-shed hit buffers thanks to vocal Heartlands supporters

By Lucy Purdy

BRAKES have been slammed on a controversial proposal by Network Rail to build a huge train depot on land near Hornsey station, after the government refused to give it the go-ahead.

The plan to build a large shed on land near the New River Village was panned when it was announced, with critics calling it "an unsightly bunker". Network Rail said the 280-metre-long, 13-metre high shed was necessary as part of the £5.5billion Thameslink Programme and had chosen the site off Hampden Lane, along with another in West Sussex, due to its size and transport links. But the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, John Denham, last week denied Network Rail permission for the shed after Haringey Council leader Claire Kober said it would harm the Heartlands regeneration zone, destroy a conservation area and impact upon the quality of life of residents living nearby.

It is extremely rare for such a decision to be made as Network Rail owns the site and therefore has rights of permitted development. Such rulings are only made in the face of "compelling" public interest concerns.

Now the company must apply for planning permission.

Councillor Kober said: "We are very pleased we have been listened to. A development like this requires proper consideration by the council and the community and the use of permitted development for this purpose is not acceptable. This would prevent the local community having any say at all.

"I'm also extremely concerned to ensure the long-standing regeneration of Haringey Heartlands is properly considered in any subsequent application for permission as a development such as this could have grave consequences for the whole community."

As part of their opposition to the plan, a council spokesman had said: "The new maintenance building, due to its elevated position, substantial length and its anticipated height would be visually intrusive in views from New River Village and from Alexandra Palace to the west, from Turnpike Lane to the south, and from Haringey Heartlands sites. It would require a very good standard of design, and some considerable lowering of the overall height, to deal with this concern."

Three fire engines and about 15 firefighters were called to the fire in Markfield Road, near South Tottenham station on Monday.

A quarter of the 15-metre railway arch was damaged when the blaze broke out just after 6am. Firefighters from Tottenham and Hornsey fire stations had it under control by 8.10am.

Fruit group beats the jam with fresh ways to go green

Core issue: Clem Harris helps out

UNHARVESTED fruit languishing on trees in Haringey will be collected instead of wasted in a project in Crouch End launched at the weekend.

The Urban Harvest aims to make use of apples, pears, plums and other fruits which grow in the borough's streets and gardens. Whether the trees are too big, people too busy or local supermarkets too convenient, masses of delicious fruit which could be turned into jams, chutneys or puddings instead falls to the ground and rots.

Gemma Harris, of the Sustainable Haringey Food Group, hopes as many people as possible will get involved. She said: "These projects are springing up all over. Groups of volunteers go around and if you have trees with fruit which you can't pick for whatever reason, they'll come and pick it. We hope to encourage people to do it themselves but we want to get the infrastructure – ladders and tools – to make it easier.

"We have all this artificially ripened fruit in the supermarkets which is shipped in from halfway across the world but often local fruit is wasted. So much is said these days about people growing their own food, which is great, but it also makes sense to start with food already there waiting."

Volunteers gathered in Crouch End on Sunday to kickstart the scheme, handing out leaflets to shoppers. Meetings will be held on the second Friday of every month at the Toll Gate pub in Turnpike Lane to work out a strategy before next summer's fruit season.

Email info@urbanharvest.org.uk or visit www.sustainableharingey.org.uk to find out more or let the group know about sources.

From rags to riches for project

Stitch In Time helps designers

AN inspirational project which gives unemployed people in Haringey a shot at a career in the fashion industry is going from strength to strength eight months after it was launched.

About 40 people who dropped out of the job market for various reasons have already successfully completed the Stitch In Time scheme since it started in April. Based in a factory in Vale Road, Finsbury Park, organisers hope to mould the fashion designers of tomorrow by giving people not just sewing skills but also invaluable advice on how to run a successful business.

Mother-of-two Linda Belfon, of Philip Lane, Tottenham, enrolled in August after spotting a flyer in her local Jobcentre. She said: "Before I came here I didn't see myself doing something in fashion, even though both my parents worked in the rag trade. Since I was a toddler I've seen patterns lying about and stitched collars and things. But if you'd told me a year ago I'd work in fashion, I wouldn't have believed you.

"Now it's my absolute passion. It might sound silly but this has made me feel part of society. Now I have real self worth and feel I've been given a chance to shine. I proved to myself I can do something useful. I help out pattern-cutting, designing and sewing and everyone around me is so positive – it's amazing."

Once they have mastered the basics, students are found sought-after placements in top companies such as Jaeger. The company behind the scheme, Fashion Enter, also has a showroom in south London where people can pitch their collections to companies such as ASOS and Topshop.

"These are huge opportunities," explained education manager Emily Tullett. "We're ready to boost these people's confidence and they learn life skills as well. It's so rewarding for us to see people make progress. Fashion is a very competitive industry but these sort of opportunities can give them a head start. And we help with related skills such as fashion promotion and even journalism."

The scheme is supported by Haringey Council, the Bridge New Deal for Communities and the Florentia Clothing VIllage in nearby Seven Sisters.

Tinny's sweet message

Ghanaian pop star takes a break with kids

By Lucy Purdy

A GHANAIAN pop singer currently starring in TV adverts for Cadbury met young people from Haringey during a recent visit to Bruce Grove Youth Centre.

Musician Tinny, star of the recent Fairtrade Dairy Milk campaign, toured the centre and spoke to staff and young people about his music, native country and Fairtrade. Many of the young people had recently taken part in a series of Fairtrade workshops and were keen to hear Tinny's perspective on the impact of Fairtrade on Ghana's cocoa farming communities. Tinny performs his single Zingolo on the advert which is filmed in a Ghanaian cocoa farming community and also includes an energetic dance routine.

Speaking after the visit, Tinny said: "I loved meeting all the young people and seeing their passion for music and for Fairtrade. It's a fantastic centre and does a great job giving these kids the facilities to learn new skills – whether it's about Fairtrade, music, dance or drama."

Berkeley Gardener, from the centre, said: "Having learned about Fairtrade in recent weeks our young people were keen to hear how Tinny had got involved with Cadbury's campaign. As Tinny's a big star in Ghana it was great for our music and dance students to meet and take inspiration from him."

Tottenham MP David Lammy, who helped arrange the visit, added: "I was delighted to welcome such a big star from Ghana to Bruce Grove Youth Centre. Tinny's passion for Fairtrade was a wonderful example and sits well with the great work that goes on at the centre."

The £3million youth centre is located in the heart of Bruce Grove and is currently the only statutory youth provision in the area. It attracts young people aged between 13-17 from Bruce Grove and all over Haringey.

Zingolo is out now on Glass And A Half Full Records and is available on iTunes. Profits from single sales go to the charity CARE International to fund education programmes in Ghana.

Operations to crack Christmas crime

ROGUE street traders and illegal DVD sellers hoping to make money over the Christmas period are being targeted in a joint operation by Haringey police and Haringey Council.

Offficers will patrol pubs and clubs over the next few weeks using screening arches and screening wands to deter would-be criminals. They will visit popular night spots including Wood Green, Tottenham and Muswell Hill alongside officers from the council's enforcement team who will tackle noise nuisance, litter and other environmental problems.

Operation Christmas Cracker will also cover busy shopping areas during the weekends to clamp down on illegal traders and chancers peddling counterfeit goods.

Inspector Mark Hembury, of Haringey's Operations and Events Office, said: "We are specifically looking to provide reassurance and reduce crime and disorder in the busy lead up to Christmas, so that people can sensibly and safely enjoy the many shopping facilities and bustling night-time economy on offer in Haringey.

Don't make a thief's Christmas – take some basic precautions to ensure you can enjoy yourself safely."

Operation Christmas Cracker is one of a range of operations taking place across Haringey to make the borough safer. Operation Bumblebee is running Met-wide to tackle burglary, Haringey officers are supporting the Met's anti-drink and drug driving campaign, and Safer Transport and Safer Neighbourhood teams are providing personal safety and crime prevention advice.

Futurist 3D stunner

Avatar (12A)

Dir: James Cameron
Starring: Sam Worthington, Zoe Saldana, Sigourney Weaver

Future looks eerie: Jake (Sam Worthington) and Neytiri (Zoe Saldana)

IT'S good they provide 3D glasses. If nothing else to protect your eyes from the retina-scorching images in one of the most visually stunning films ever made.

We've seen this plot before – Star Wars, The Lord Of The Rings, Apocalypse Now, Star Trek even Tarzan are some of Cameron's touchstones – but nothing like what the writer/director has overseen in sheer eye candy, that raises cinematic entertainment to a whole new level and is therefore one of the most significant films of the 21st century.

The whole epic is shot in an advanced form of 3D so we are immersed in the human sections and the animated ones as if we are in that office, in the forest or – more thrillingly – in that incredible fight with a hundred gunships against a mass of screaming flying dragons. His creative team has also developed computer generated images to such an extent that their animations seem almost human, allowing us to engage, and have none of the creepy "dead eyes" that marred films like The Polar Express.

Somewhere in the middle of all this is a pretty good story. Roughly 150 years in the future the earth is suffering an energy crisis and has begun mining on a remote planet called Pandora inhabited by ten-foot high blue creatures called Na'vi. To counter the toxic atmosphere scientists have created the Avatar Programme allowing humans to remotely "drive" their Na'vi avatar and conduct research.

Wheelchair-bound, former marine Jake Sully (Worthington) has been chosen to drive one such avatar and befriends the Na'vi and, in particular, one lithesome female called Neytiri (Saldana) who introduces Jake to her beautiful planet – cue another feast of extraordinary visuals.

But Jake has also been chosen by the head of the brutal security company protecting the humans to orchestrate less savoury means to persuade the Na'vi to work with the colonising humans in a critique of aggressive occupiers everywhere.

It runs for 161 minutes but every one of those is utterly engrossing as Cameron has created a dream of mind-blowing pictures to propel film at the speed of light into the next decade.

Now Showing...

Where The Wild Things Are (PG)
Tedious version of the Maurice Sendak picture book about a young boy who discovers an island of funny, hairy monsters. But Spike Jonze's film fails to bring any magic or wonder to a multiplex near you this Christmas.

Cracks (15)
As in not all it's cracked up to be… crackers... crack of doom. Jordan Scott's wretched adaptation of the book, set in an all girls' boarding school, is a confused mess with dialogue lamer than a dead dog.

Paranormal Activity (15)
Stunning low budget horror in which a couple desperately try to document the increasing bumps in the night through a hand-held camera as Blair Witch gets a wicked makeover in petrified suburbia.

A Serious Man (15)
Too darned serious for its own good as the Coen brothers use their considerable talents to almost wilfully make a downbeat, reflective yet dull meditation on the meaning of life. Circumstances conspire to drive a Jewish man round the bend in the 1960s Midwest.

'Our lives are much better than I ever thought they could be'

A happier family

SARA El-Shennawy, 32, a mother-of-three from Orpington in Kent, explains how visiting her local Sure Start Children's Centre helped her de-stress, lose weight, gain qualifications and spend quality time with her children.

SEVEN years ago my life literally just stopped. I fell awkwardly out of the car and damaged the nerves in my back. I was in hospital for weeks, could barely move, and well, the rest is a bit of a blur.

The pain was unbearable, so when I wasn't being treated in hospital I spent a lot of time in bed. I comfort ate to make me feel better but I put on lots of weight – I was 26 stone at my heaviest. I was virtually housebound for the next four years.

I had my daughter Aisha, then four, to think about, but my health problems made me really depressed.

I was determined to pick myself back up, and having my twins Kian and Mya three years ago helped.

The children brought me so much happiness, but sometimes I wished for some extra support looking after them.

When she was six, Aisha was diagnosed with autism. Then doctors told us Kian also has autism and Mya is currently being tested for Attention-Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD).

Things started to get better for us all two years ago when I was picking Aisha up from school and I heard another mum talking about the Blenheim Sure Start Children's Centre.

It sounded wonderful, and I called the children's centre as soon as I got home. The lady that I spoke to invited me to pop in for a chat.

Everyone I met was lovely and took the time to talk to me about me, my family and how they could help. I was impressed; it was warm, friendly and I felt safe there.

It's a good place for my children to be as it gives them a change of scene and there are lots of fun activities where they can play and learn.

I took a parenting course where I learned how to control my children's feelings and behavior to help them develop.

The biggest thing I learned was that a bit of quality time spent with the three of them goes a long way. I'm not as stressed anymore and it helped make us all happier.

I've also done lots of courses since then, one in nutrition and GCSEs in maths and English.

My health is also better than what it was. I still get back pain, but I've lost the weight and I'm down to 13 stone and I am feeling much fitter and healthier.

The support of the staff at the children's centre has made such a difference. I have made friends with other mums and dads and my children are doing much better, they have new friends and are much calmer.

We are a happier family thanks to the Sure Start Children's Centre and our lives are much better than I ever thought they could be.

Circus Cinders is a hit from the big top

Jonathan Lovett reviews Cinderella at Jacksons Lane

THERE can't be many productions at this time of year in which the sing-along is to Prince's Purple Rain and the heroine finds herself in a performing arts school surrounded by magicians and acrobats.

But Jacksons Lane is not – thank the Lord – your traditional, middle of the road arts centre.

Since it switched to specialising in circus and physical theatre, a breath of fresh air has swept through the previously prosaic venue – resulting far more tricks and turns than "It's behind you" or men in drag.

Occasionally there's too much reliance on a talking heads video projection, but for inventive spectacle it can only be praised.

The former comes courtesy of Adrian Berry, who has written and directed an imaginative spin on the Cinders tale in which Ella ends up at a horrible talent school presided over by the headmaster from hell, Dr Kane (Gordon Warnecke).

Cinderella's got talent: Jacksons Lane gives the classic a twist

There she meets Candy and Colin (aka the Ugly Sisters) who perform a variety of splendid acrobatics and Victor (aka Prince Charming), a dab hand at illusions.

These three are responsible for the spectacle element and it's an inspired move to have them played by professional acrobats, while expert magician Christian Lee has a wonderful way with the kids. Lee is also half of one of the most endearing double acts of the festive season, partnering the lovely Stacha Hicks as Cinderella.

In school uniform and broad London accent, Hicks has a scruffy charm far removed from the little Miss Perfects of Pantoland.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.
2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.
To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.
3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:
(a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
(b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
(c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.
4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.
5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.
7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.
8. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.
9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.
11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.
12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.
13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.
(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.
(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.
14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.
15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.
16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.
17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.
18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers
Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. ## gannets' restaurant awards

Last chance to get your dining choice into awards

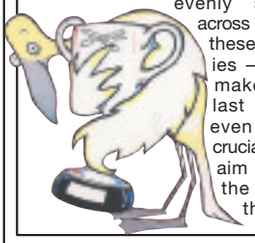

STILL haven't nominated? Then you had best put pen to paper right now...

One more chance is all we are giving you to tell us about your favourite restaurant and boost its chances in our prestigious Gannets' Restaurant of the Year Award.

This is the last time this form will appear in the Press, and next Wednesday is the final date for us to receive nominations.

In the past few weeks we have been swamped by a paper mountain as diners across north London jot down reasons why their chosen restaurant should win our hotly contested competition.

So far we have received more than 300 entry forms, with more than 30 different restaurants nominated. These nominations have been evenly spread across most of these eateries – which makes the last week even more crucial as we aim to find the top three to go into our grand final. Once the deadline has passed, our gannet girls will sit down and count all the forms. The restaurants which receive the most votes in each category will then go head to head and the three will be visited – incognito of course – by the girls, who will make a final decision over who is the Restaurant of the Year Winner 2009.

We'll let you know which restaurants make it into the top three and then you can visit the tasty trio - keeping a beady eye out for any greedy gannets next to you!

So, what are you waiting for? Get writing – your vote could make all the difference.

Doyle shocks Tottenham as Assou-Ekotto has an angry bust-up with a supporter

Dead end: Jermain Defoe can't find a way through as Spurs failed to score on Saturday

By Lee Husson

HARRY REDKNAPP was quick to play down the significance of Spurs' shock 1-0 defeat at home to Wolves in the bigger picture of Champions League qualification on Saturday, but Benoit Assou-Ekotto's heated altercation with a fan at the end of the match would suggest that both the clubs' supporters and players sensed these were a costly three points dropped.

The Cameroonian defender reacted angrily after being branded "s" as he made his way down the tunnel at the end of a fruitless 90 minutes for the home side, with some reports suggesting he tried to grab the fan by the throat before he was quickly ushered down the tunnel by coach Joe Jordan.

Police and Tottenham Hotspur were investigating the incident, which has since been dropped, meaning Assou-Ekotto will avoid being in any hot water over his actions, but Spurs themselves are beginning to struggle to stay afloat in the race for the top four.

Kevin Doyle headed Wolves into a third-minute lead at White Hart Lane, and although Redknapp's side bossed possession for the rest of the match, they could find no way past a resolute defence, leaving them bereft of ideas as the match wore on.

It was hard to believe it was the same side that tore Wigan to shreds as they found the net nine times in their previous home match, but over the years Spurs have always proved to be consistently inconsistent, and Saturday left their supporters with an all too familiar sinking feeling.

Asked whether the result showed how difficult it is to finish in the top four, Redknapp (pictured) said: "Not really, it just shows you how difficult it is to win football matches. "Chelsea couldn't beat Everton, could they? But they will finish in the top four.

"No one has got a divine right to beat anybody. There are shock results every week in football, just look at some of the scores from Saturday.

"This is the most open race for a long time – Manchester City and Aston Villa are right up there. It's going to be tight."

Roach signs as Massara's Skolars revolution takes shape ahead of the season

HEAD coach James Massara is confident that newly signed prop Liam Roach will have a big impact at the London Skolars.

Roach, who is the latest in a number of new faces to have joined the rugby league club since the end of last season, has moved to the Skolars from Sydney-based Wests Tigers, where he formed part of their Toyota Cup squad.

"Liam was very keen to get over to the United Kingdom and get stuck in to pre-season and meet his new team-mates," Massara said.

"I like his attitude. He is really making the most of his opportunity so far and is fitting in well with the squad."

Roach will get his first opportunities to pull on the Skolars shirt with they take on Harlequins in the ETF Securities Capital Challenge on January 22.

Meanwhile, last year's interim head coach, Jermaine Coleman, is closing in on a return to full fitness as he gets set to take up a player-coach role at the club.

The 27-year-old has been at the Skolars for the past five years, but has been blighted by injury in recent seasons.

"Jermaine's rehab is going very well and I can't wait to have him back on the pitch," Massara added.

"He has had a nightmare few years with injuries, but sometimes setbacks can make you stronger as a person.

"His return to fitness will be a big boost to us, and I am equally excited to have him on board with us as a coach this year."
